

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

- A. H. BARRETT, The Orchard, Manor Road, Goring-on-Thames. Retired civil servant, interested in the early history of Worcester College.
- JEREMY BLACK, University of Durham. Lecturer in History; working on 18th-century British history.
- JOHN BLAIR, The Queen's College, Oxford. Editor of Oxoniensia; research interests including Anglo-Saxon and medieval Oxfordshire.
- RICHARD BRADLEY, Department of Archaeology, Reading University. Reader in Archaeology; work on British prehistory and the problems of social archaeology.
- R. A. CHAMBERS, Field Officer, Oxford Archaeological Unit.
- SALLY CRAWFORD, St. Hilda's College, Oxford. Working on children in Anglo-Saxon England.
- NICHOLAS DOGGETT, Pant-y-Celyn, Pen-y-Ganedd, Llanrhaeadr, Powys.
- NIALL DONALD, 56 Derby Road, Gloucester. Graduate of Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford; currently working as site supervisor for the Gloucester City Excavation Unit.
- J.T. DRIVER, 28 Abbots Grange, Chester. Part-time Lecturer in History, Department of Continuing Education, Liverpool University; working on Midland knights of the shire in the 15th century.
- PETER FASHAM, Assistant Director, Trust for Wessex Archaeology, 65 The Close, Salisbury. Working on prehistoric settlement archaeology and medieval towns in Wessex.
- ROBIN HOLGATE, Field Archaeology Unit, Institute of Archaeology, University College, London. Field officer; working on mesolithic/neolithic settlement patterns in southern England and northern France.
- NANCY HOOD, Curator of Abingdon Museum and Vale and Downland Museum, Wantage.
- MICHAEL P. KUCZYNSKI, Dept. of English, University of North Carolina, U.S.A.
- B. and J. MARPLES, 1 Vanbrugh Close, Old Woodstock.
- H. C. MYTUM, University of York. Lecturer in Archaeology; working on Iron Age settlement, particularly in western Britain.
- DAVID POSTLES, 50 West End, Pinxton, Derbs. Wrote PhD thesis on Oseney Abbey and its estates; now researching the seigneurial (demesne) economy in Oxfordshire in the 13th and 14th centuries for a wider study.
- W. THWAITES, 18 Great Lane, Greetham, Leics.
- JEFFREY WALLIS, 59 Henley St., Oxford. Self-employed archaeological illustrator. Excavation secretary, Abingdon Archaeological and Historical Society. Directing and publishing excavations on neolithic, Iron Age and medieval sites in and around Abingdon.
- D. G. WILSON, Godstow Lock House, Wolvercote, Oxford. Author of The Making of the Middle Thames (1977), and a history of Thames navigation, forthcoming.
- ELIZABETH WOOD, 12 Jackson-Cole House, St. Thomas St., Oxford. Has lived since 1950 in Oxford, where she worked as a Local Government Officer. Now retired, working on Wood family history; author of Colonel Thomas Wood M.P. (Brecknock Museum, 1978).